

Writing outstanding résumés, developing job search strategies, personal branding, career & executive coaching, outplacement, interview tutoring, and creating a powerful online and in-person image, have gained Martin Buckland a reputation as a leading global authority in executive career management.

Martin has been described by 2 leading Canadian Executive Recruiters as the most connected person at the senior executive level in Canada and continually initiates partnerships with many Executive Search and Outplacement Firms across North America. He facilitates the twice monthly ExecuNet Senior Roundtable in the Greater Toronto region, serves as a moderator for Canadian and International online forums, and has bolstered his brand forming alliances with numerous North American Business Schools as the preferred EMBA Career Coach.

Martin enjoys presenting, delivering what he light heartedly calls 'the career management gospel according to Martin'. Sharing job search strategies blended with interview, personal branding and executive coaching have become an integral part of his business, frequently presenting to numerous organizations, associations, networking groups, public and private entities as an authority in career management. His empathy and compassion, combined with his excellent communication skills and affable British charm, enable him to engage and enlighten an audience at all levels, leaving them wanting more.

Based in Ontario, Canada, Martin is the resume expert for the Canadian Professional Sales Association, Netshare, ExecuNet, American Management Association, Certified General Accountants of Ontario, Project Management Institute, Life After Bell, Society of Automotive Engineers, and Canadian Bankers Association.

(240 words)